World Orienteering Day

MAY 11TH
2016

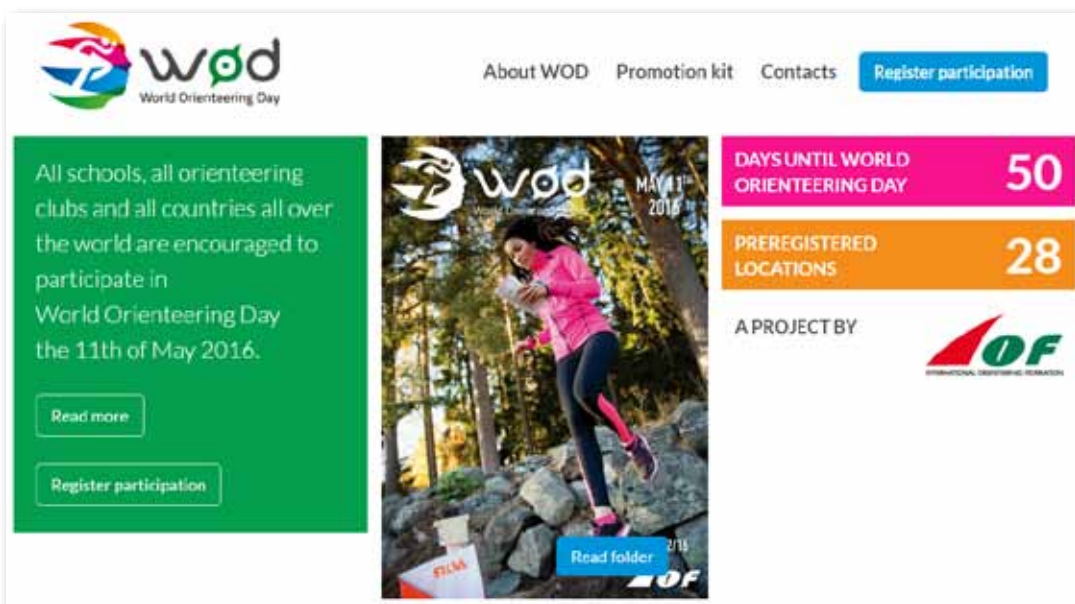

WOD 2/16

The website is now up and running

After hard work from a lot of people we are proud to release the World Orienteering Day website! Here you will find all the information regarding WOD 2016. The current "WOD info" will be located in the middle of the top bar and the old "WOD infos" in the Archives box.

In "Promotion Kit" you can download for FREE all the logos, posters, certificates, decals (stickers), bibs etc to use for your local event.

Registration

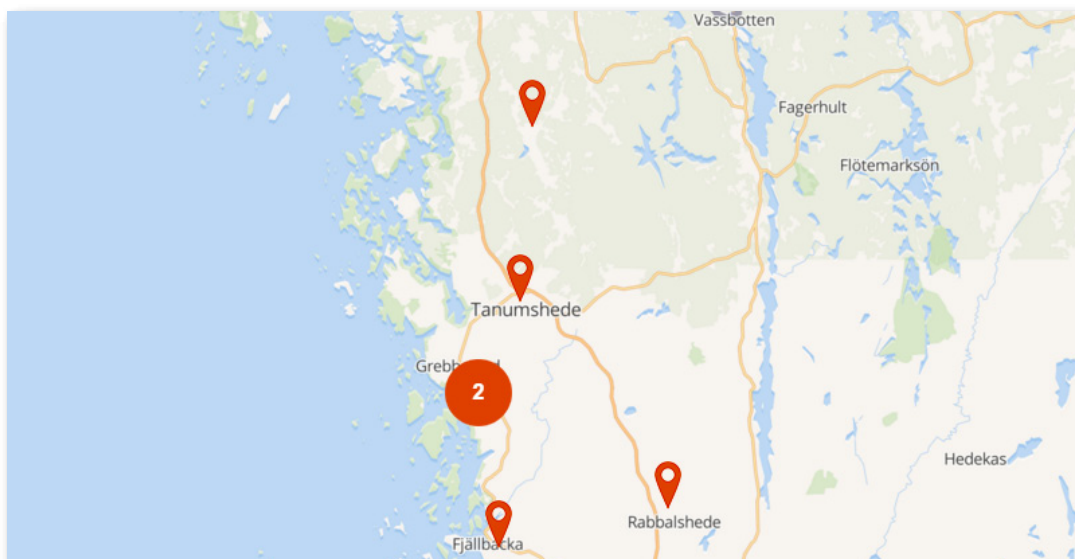

The website is now ready for registration. Please register your event and contact person as soon as possible. When you have finalised your registration, a red flag will appear on the map. If there are many events in a small area, a red circle with a number will appear. You can also upload maps and photos for each event.

Your name, email address and mobile phone number are important information for our network. You can choose if you want this information to be public.

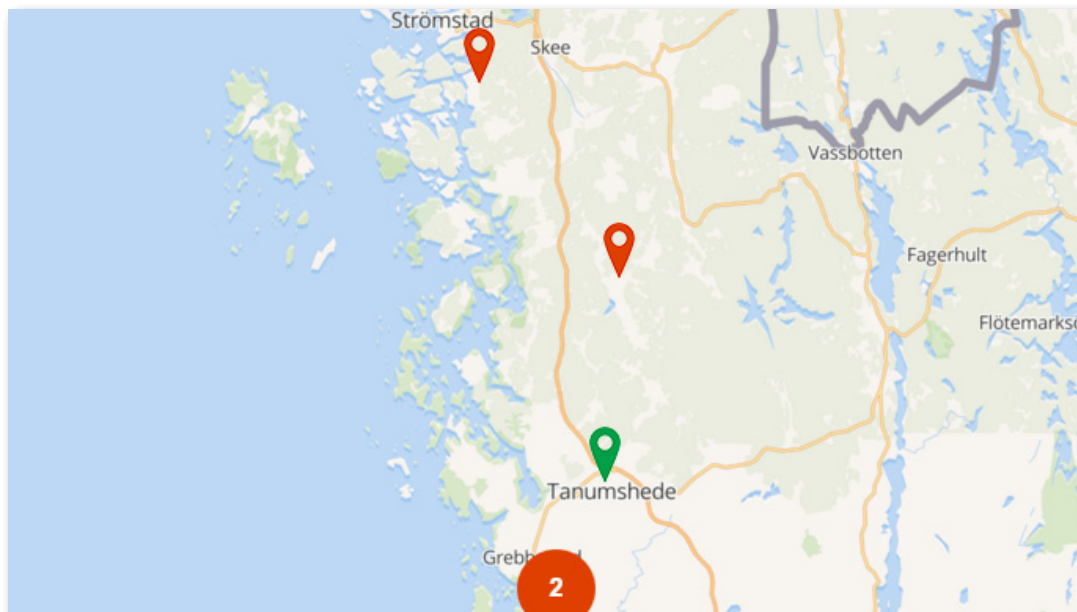

Follow the registrations tally

On the front page you can follow the registrations day by day (Preregistered locations). On World Orienteering Day itself you can also follow the number of participants as they are continuously reported from each event (World participants).

Reporting

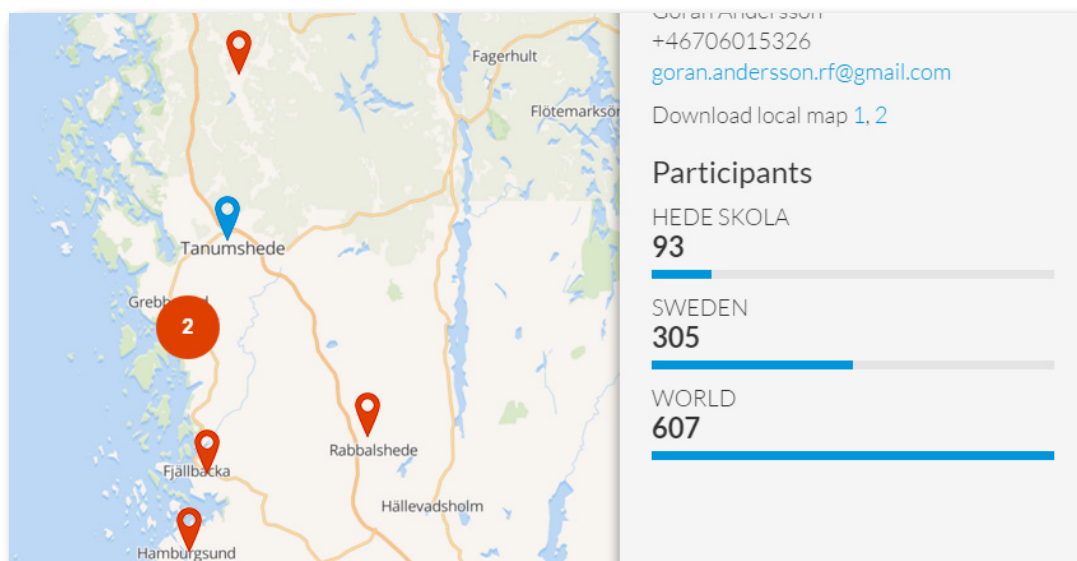

After carrying out your activity you report the number of participants, registering their number, gender and age. When you have finalised your report the red flag changes to green. You can view the statistics for your local event, for your country and for the world. The blue flag indicates that this event is open on your screen.

Maps and photos

You can upload maps and photos for each event. Please also upload posters, flyers or other information you want to show to the rest of the world.

This website will be an inspiration for all of us to take orienteering forward as a cool and awesome sport.

WOD-NEWS FROM AROUND THE WORLD

Canberra, Australia in action

SC-ORE School Orienteering – A great “Starter Pack”

This school safe orienteering, held on Thursday mornings has generated exceptional enthusiasm in Canberra, Australia’s national capital. First trialled over 4 weeks in March 2015 and now repeated with some tweaks and improvements. November saw 13 teams – (52 junior orienteers) put their bodies and brains to the test, and again in March 2016 another 13 teams have signed up.

Their infectious enthusiasm was a pleasure to witness! Held before school at a different school each week, two boys and two girls from each school compete in a mixed relay format. Viewed by many as a perfect “starter pack” SC-ORE – school orienteering provides an introduction for children before they start on regular club orienteering . It is exactly the recipe that the sport needs to help kids transition from occasional sport at school into long term community involvement. The key ingredients are: Parents are involved (someone has to drive them at 8 am); It provides great spectator opportunities (other children arriving at school at 9 am see all the action); It is challenging (on an unfamiliar school campus) yet it is secure (within the school and oval confines).

Hässleholm, Sweden in action (Skol-Sprinten)

13 years ago, 2004, a very enthusiastic coach from Hässleholm's Orienteering Club, Ivar Nilsson started the "Skol-Sprinten" in Sweden. More than 700 kids from different schools in the city are running every year this successful team event for Class 4, 5 and 6 at Secondary School. Also for May 11th this year they will carry out this annual event.

HOW TO HOST WOD ON MAY 11TH!

An example without punching system

The school staff's funniest faces

Use the "Star-O" (star-relay) Orienteering-form to set up an event. All students have a map with only one control. Instead of punching system you can use photos as control markers. As a fun alternative you can take photos of the school staff. But they have to be fun photos! You can use different apps to change the face. Another variation is that everyone who works at the school makes her/his ugliest face or grimace. Put the photo in A5 size and laminate it. Students report at the finish who and what grimace was present at the respective controls.

Change faces

The apps I have been using to change my face are:

- Pencil Sketch
- Face Changer
- YouCam Makeup

There are many more to use and these apps I found at Google Play. They are all free of charge to use.

SILVA AND EMIT, NEW EVENT PARTNERS

Our partners will be carefully selected, so that both the IOF and the partners gain mutual benefit from the fruitful collaboration. We will strive for product and service exclusivity for our World Orienteering Day partners. World Orienteering Day will be an annual event, which means that a partnership can be signed for one or several years. This makes a perfect CSR-project (Corporate Social Responsibility) for each company, where the partner's contribution can make a real difference for young people.

We are very happy and proud that today we can announce that two of the Orienteering's most important business partners want to collaborate with the IOF for World Orienteering Day.

Silva Sweden AB and Emit AS are well known and reputable companies in Orienteering and their products are forerunners in both innovation and design.

In the next issue of the WOD info and on the WOD website, SILVA and EMIT will offer various products and packages at very reasonable prices for participants in the World Orienteering Day.

Turkish promotion

Different kinds of flyers and a 6-page brochure for all clubs and schools. Turkey is proactive and very enthusiastic. The expectation is high!

Norwegian website

World Orienteering Day in Norway has an own special page on the Norwegian Federation's website. Here, clubs and schools find all necessary information about WOD May 11th. There are also a lot of proposals for different activities you can carry out during the day, both in school and in the club. A lot of clubs are already prepared to carry out a "cool and awesome" Wednesday May 11th.
